

Little Red Is Now Helping Those Of Us With Our Own Big Bad Wolves

Acmeville, USA - August 15, 2010 - One day, many years ago, a girl named Little Red wanted to visit her grandma. She made lunch, packed it in a nice basket, and set out for a long walk to her grandma's house. It should have been an ordinary day, and would have been, except for a big bad wolf who got in Little Red's way. If it hadn't been for a local lumberjack, G. Rimbros, Little Red and her grandma wouldn't be here to share their experience. Little Red has taken what she learned that day and developed a product we can all use to help with our own big, bad wolves.

On the outside, they don't seem unusual. They are attractive baskets, designed for a picnic for four people. On the inside is what sets these baskets apart. Fit into the weave of each basket is a tracking device that allows the basket to be found anywhere in the world. Each basket includes an ear piercing whistle which will draw attention from anyone up to one mile away. Along with that whistle, you'll also have a personal taser to use in the event that the big, bad wolf is more persistent.

Security is important, both for ourselves and those we love. If you agree, and you'd like to be ready the next time you visit grandma's house, make sure that you are prepared with the Picnic Pilfering Prevention Package. As G. Rimbros said, "I was so happy to be there that day to help Little Red and her grandma, but we can't always depend on someone else to be around to help. That's why everyone in my family own's Little Red's Picnic Pilfering Prevention Package, and you should too!"
